A NOTE FROM JIM:

We have added what we are calling "Jim's picks". They are items that have some really interesting stories or important attributes. Most of these new products are from small family-owned businesses, some are local, some eco-friendly, others are nutritious, vegan, gluten-free, or simply delicious. Most are many of the above!

I can't begin to tell all the stories of these products but a few.

Just Coffee Co-op is a B-corporation that does amazing work on helping small coffee growers, reducing greenhouse admissions, and helping the community. One of my real favorites. (Indeed, I like them so much I have had them speak to my classes). Their coffee is world-class!

Jali Fruit Company works with people in developing nations to help reduce waste and raise incomes by dehydrating fruit that would otherwise be thrown away.

Inspirationally good and a great snack item.

Dated Nutrition is a local company (you probably saw them in the OTH a while ago for winning an entrepreneurship contest sponsored by the Eric Layne foundation).

Delicious, nutritious, and SUPER local!

My last one today is Off Our Rockers which is a women-owned bakery from Massachusetts that makes simply delicious cookies (in the grab and go case). As I mentioned on Facebook, they are to be savored. But hey we are in a pandemic, we have earned the right to have a delicious cookie with no questions asked!

These items are concentrated near the front entrance but look for the green signs throughout the store. They are a sign of great food and a great story too!

Incidentally, working with these small companies has been simply a treat. What a HUGE difference from working with large companies to whom we are often less than an afterthought. I think you will enjoy their food and drink as much as I have been when I test them.

-Jim
