Crispy Oven Roasted Chicken Leg Quarters

6 chicken quarters
2 tsp kosher salt (or to taste)
1 tsp black pepper (or to taste)
1/2 tsp granulated garlic (or garlic powder)
1/2 tsp granulated onion (or onion powder)
1/2 tsp paprika
1/2 tsp cayenne pepper
1/2 tsp garlic powder (or garlic powder)
1/2 tsp vegetable oil (for rubbing)
1/2 cup cooking oil (for frying)

Preheat oven to 400°F.
Dry the chicken quarters with paper towels and rub with oil. Sprinkle the seasonings on both sides of each quarter and pat dry to make the seasoning stick.
Heat 1/2 cup of cooking oil in a large skillet over medium-high heat. In two batches, cook the chicken quarters, about 3 minutes per side or until the skin is deep golden brown. The time will depend on how hot your oil is.
Transfer the chicken onto the baking sheet. Bake with a cooking rack. Turn about 1. Flip the chicken once from the skillet over each chicken quarter.
Tip: Use the baking sheet with aluminum foil for easier cleanup (cleaning after cooking).
Tip: You must use a cooking rack, or else the bottom of the chicken will come out soggy and greasy. Bake at 400°F for about 15-20 minutes, or until the chicken skin is crispy and deep golden brown. (Different ovens bake differently so the exact time may vary. In my oven, I cook 40 minutes.)
Tip: Chicken quarters will be fully cooked and reach 165°F internal temperature at 400°F in about 20 minutes, but you want to cook them longer for less moisture. Once a Real Chicken leg and thigh can taste much better when cooked to about 190°F. Turn off the oven and let the chicken rest for 10 minutes. The second reason is that the skin won't be as crispy after just 20 minutes.
Remove the chicken from the oven, let rest for 3 minutes and serve with your favorite side dish.
