MUFFULETTA SANDWICH

Did you know that several years ago the FOODIES at Leon's were invited to a specialty food buying show located in New Orleans? We discovered a lot of great food on that trip but hands down one of the best things we tried was the Muffuletta sandwich. According to legend, the original muffuletta sandwich is said to have been created in 1906 at Central Grocery Co on Decatur Street right in the heart of the French Quarter.

The traditional style muffuletta sandwich consists of layers upon layers of mortadella, salami, ham, swiss, provolone as well as their signature marinated olive salad. The signature olive salad is what really makes the sandwich. It is a mix of diced olives that are combined with giardiniera (celery, cauliflower, carrots, etc) seasoned with oregano/garlic then covered in olive oil and then allowed to combine for at least 24 hours prior to use.

While no one knows the exact recipe of this Central Grocery classic, we think ours comes pretty darn close and it has won rave reviews by a lot of folks who have had the New Orleans original. This week the FOODIES at Leon's will be making them FRESH daily and the best part is that they will be on sale all week right through Fat Tuesday!

CHRIS ROSE

CUCINA VIVA GNOCCHI

This traditional potato dumpling is an excellent product to have in the pantry because it is quick cooking, shelf stable and easy to prepare. The round dumpling is a typical initial course served inside Italian cuisine. It pairs perfectly with virtually any sauce plus it can be served an appetizer or leading course. Top with olive oil, sauce, then serve with Parmesan. All-natural, no trans-fat.
